

Background

Working in schools, many teachers do not get the opportunity to maintain and practice their English skills especially speaking. To respond to this need, the British Council is offering a series of English refresher lessons specifically for English teachers. Each lesson will give teachers the opportunity to discuss a topic in English with a British Council trainer and other teachers from across Japan.

Language proficiency

This series of lessons will teachers the opportunity to return to the classroom as language learners.

Features of the lessons include:

- authentic samples of spoken and written English
- discussion activities with an information gap (participants communicate new information and ideas to each other)
- the opportunity to share your own experience and opinions
- the integration of speaking, listening, reading and writing
- grammar and vocabulary as tools for communication.

Language level

The materials in these lessons are aimed at learners between B1-B2 levels on the CEFR. There will be no level-checking assessment to join these lessons, so you may find them relatively easy or quite challenging, depending on your own language level. We hope that all participants will learn some new words and phrases however, and will enjoy the opportunity to brush up their skills through discussions with other English teachers from across Japan.

CEFR scale

Note that it takes roughly 120 hours of study to significantly improve your English proficiency enough to move up one level on the CEFR.

Target audience

These lessons are targeted at English teachers at Junior and Senior High schools, though Elementary school English teachers at A2+ level on the CEFR are very welcome to join. The topics chosen are ones that regularly occur in MEXT-approved secondary school textbooks.
