【第 5 話】A wonderful encounter brought about by Turner(ターナーがもたらしたすばらしい出会い)

(Mary and John stand in front of a painting, one at each side. The painting, “Sun Setting over a Lake”, can be seen between them. After a short silence...)

Mary: (Without looking into John’s eyes) I was going out with him until just recently. He’s a big fan of Turner too... and we promised to go and see the exhibition together. But... he dumped me.
(Mary looks down)

John: Oh, I’m sorry. I didn’t know. And I went and invited you to the exhibition....

Mary: No, no. No need to apologise. I wouldn’t have had the courage to come on my own if you hadn’t asked me to join you, and now I finally feel calm, just like the scene in this painting .

John: You know Turner was known as a Romantic landscape painter, but actually his later works like this one were connected with the development of the later Impressionist movement. I’m sure the feelings you have now will be connected with the development of something wonderful in the future too.

(Looks at the painting after smiling at Mary)

Mary: (Pauses to think and takes one step closer to John)...Yes. I suppose so.
