Laughter is the most precious thing in life. To what extent do you agree with this statement?

On the whole, laughter is an important factor in cleaning up good feelings. In our daily life, when you feel happy, you laugh without any intention. On the other hand, when you do not laugh when you get angry. Therefore, it is no doubt laughter is a kind of behaviour which expresses your happiness.

In this essay, I will outline why I mostly agree with the idea that laughter is one of the most precious things in our life for two reasons for our reasons for motivation.

Some people say that there are a number of things that are more precious than laughter. For example, making success in business. Although it is true to some extent, but it is also difficult to achieve success without building up good relationships with other customers or partners. To begin with, when you meet someone for the first time and share laughter, it quickly dispels all the anxiety that you initially feel. Then laughter helps you talk with the person more naturally. Furthermore, laughter provides a good mood before a serious situation such as a business meeting. That is why people tend to have a casual conversation and tell some jokes before meetings. Therefore, due to these reasons, laughter is precious behaviour in our life.

Some people would say that people, who have a disease, have less reason to laugh. Therefore, it is a precious thing only for healthy people. It might be true to some extent,
